Urban Public Policy Fellowship Program

Policy · Leadership · Community

The Urban Public Policy Fellowship (UPPF) program is a leadership development program designed to expose historically underrepresented minority undergraduate students at UIC to key public policy issues. The program provides fellows with weekly seminars offering a solid introduction to theory and practice in the areas of public policymaking, advocacy, community development, and service provision.

Students from all academic areas are eligible, including those with an interest in fields such as education, urban planning, political science, sociology, urban health, communication, and law. Upperclassman standing (minimum 45 hours) is necessary to participate in this nondegree, noncredit program.

Please contact Catalina Nava-Esparza at cnava2@uic.edu or directly at (312) 355-0154 if you have any questions. Visit our website www.ipce.uic.edu for more information about our program.
